

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A drive system for a vehicle is described having a rubber mounted engine that provides a co-planar drive sprocket and driven sprocket. An articulated link located in the drive train between the engine and the drive sprocket allows independent movement of the engine with respect to the drive sprocket. The drive sprocket is rotationally held either by the frame member or the swing arm member.